

Registers of Aliens

The Registers of Aliens need to be seen against the backdrop of the Revolution in France and the ensuing French Revolutionary and Napoleonic Wars of the later 18th and earlier 19th century. The specific origins of the registers lie in the declaration of war by the French Republic against Great Britain in 1793 and the unease felt by the authorities about the impact on radical elements within the Country.

The registers form two distinct series. The first is a handwritten volume of declarations given in by foreigners before the Magistrates as to their origins, occupation, length of time in the Country and the intended duration of their stay in Edinburgh. Most declarations were made in 1794 although, for reasons unknown, the very first entry in this volume is there as a result of a search for foreigners carried out at Kyle's Lodgings in Bristo Place by Constables in April 1798.

The Registers in the second series are bound volumes of pro-formas of questions to be asked and answered before Magistrates regarding the name, origins, status, occupation, age and intentions of foreign visitors. Also given in these volumes, are the current addresses of the respondents as well as the names of the British ports through which they first entered the Country. They cover the period 1798-1825.

This online Index allows you to carry out a free text search to discover, for example, whether any of your ancestors came to Edinburgh during this turbulent time. You can search, for instance, using a name, age, country of origin, or occupation; simply enter your text into the 'find' box.
