

Register of the Edinburgh Charity Workhouse - 1st July 1835 to 30th June 1841

(Ref. No. SL146/9/1)

Background on the Edinburgh Charity Workhouse

In 1739 proposals were published for founding a hospital or workhouse for the employment and maintenance of the poor, the care of orphans and foundlings and the support of out pensioners. A contract between the Town Council and kirk sessions was agreed in 1740 setting the terms of the foundation of the Edinburgh Charity Workhouse. The Workhouse was funded by donations and subscriptions, from an assessment levied on householders and an annual grant from the Town Council. It was to be managed by an executive committee of 15 managers.

The Workhouse opened on 20 June 1743 at Bristo Port next to the Bedlam for lunatics. The original Bedlam was used as an infirmary for the sick and as a children's hospital. A new Bedlam was built in 1746. The Bedlam was partly demolished in 1836 and the lunatics were moved to the Children's Hospital. The children were moved to the old Orphan Hospital under the North Bridge.

As the city boundaries were extended the Town Council entered into agreements with other parishes regarding provision for their poor. In 1821 the Charity Workhouse Managers received a demand from the Town Council for sums paid to St Cuthbert's Workhouse since 1809, amounting to over £6000. This in addition to the cholera epidemic of 1832 led to an eventual debt of over £14000. These debts became bound up with the quarrel concerning the refusal of the Charity Workhouses's managers to transfer their lunatic poor to Morningside Asylum in 1842. The Council raised an action in the courts for a reduction of the 1740 Workhouse contract. The Workhouse Managers withdrew their opposition to the action in return for the council relieving them of their responsibility for the debt. A private bill was passed in 1843 giving the Council power to rate for the extinction of the workhouse debt. The Court of Session pronounced the reduction of the 1740 agreement in 1844. Edinburgh Town Council then took over the general management of the Workhouse. The pauper lunatics were transferred to Morningside Asylum.

The passage of the Poor Law Amendment Act in 1845 led to the foundation of Edinburgh Parochial Board. The Parochial Board assumed responsibility for the Charity Workhouse, which became the Edinburgh Poorhouse. The Craiglockhart Poorhouse and Hospital replaced the Edinburgh Poorhouse in 1870 and the Charity Workhouse buildings were demolished.

The Register

The Edinburgh Charity Workhouse was divided into three main parts - the House, the Children's Hospital and the Bedlam. The register is split into the following sections for each year, starting in 1835 and finishing in 1841. The years run from 1st July to 30th June.

1. Alphabetical lists of males and of females in the House at start of the period
2. Alphabetical lists boys and of girls in the Children's Hospital at start of the period
3. Alphabetical lists of male patients and of female patients in Bedlam at start of the period
4. List of admissions into the House, Hospital & Bedlam in date order during the period

5. Alphabetical list of those admitted in the current period who have also been dismissed or died in the current period (1st July 1835 to 30th June 1836 only)
6. List of departures from House, Hospital & Bedlam in date order during the current period

The register then has a consolidated alphabetical list covering the whole time from 1st July 1835 to 30th June 1841. This is a summary of the information in the earlier sections and is split into:- males and females in the House, boys and girls in the Children's Hospital and males and females in Bedlam.

Finally, the register has a list of deaths in the House, Hospital & Bedlam covering the whole time, in date order.

The Index

This single index has been created from the separate consolidated alphabetical lists, starting on page 329 of the register. The index is an alphabetical list of all the House, Hospital and Bedlam inmates in the period of the register.

Where the age is known, it is entered in the index. For the children in the hospital, "child" is put in this column if no age is given (which is true for most inmates). For children the "State" field is blank (it denotes marital status for adults).

The full words have been used for some of the abbreviations, mainly for places of birth; for example, "Edinburgh" instead of "Edin".

Most of the dates are just month and year and have been converted to the format "00/mm/yyyy".

When there is more than one date in the date admitted column this means they were admitted on each of the dates given. Similarly for date left.

As noted above, this index is taken from the consolidated lists, which are summaries of information. The full entries often have more information. For example, the "died" field is just a month and year in the consolidated list. In the main list of deaths in the register, the full date and sometimes the cause are given. In the list of departures, there is often a comment as to where the person went. Sometimes the place of birth or occupation are in the main admission or departure lists but not in the consolidated list. Spot checks of the full entries elsewhere in the book show a few mistakes with information in the consolidated list. So, the full entries of admission, departure or death should be checked for confirmation of facts, as well as for more information.

This online index allows you to carry out a free text search to discover, for example, whether any of your ancestors were inmates within this establishment. Simply enter your search term in the 'find' box.
