

The 1694 Poll Tax was collected following an Act of the Scots Parliament of May 1693 to make up a shortfall in crown revenue required to pay for things such as the armed forces. Further Poll Taxes followed in subsequent years for similar reasons – an Act of June 1695 was passed to cover the cost to the crown of the war with France, for example.

The collection of Poll Tax records held at Edinburgh City Archives (our ref. SL225) comprises of bundles of original returns handed in by householders at their parish church at the request of the Council, and of certain lists or indices drawn up by the council clerks with respect to the returns.

While each return is different they contain broadly similar information, such as the name and station of the householder, any family members living in the property, the number of servants and their wages, the names of apprentices and lodgers and the value of stock owned by businesspeople.

This online index has been created using the names of the householders as given on the individual returns in the collection of Poll Tax Records. Usually this is a man's name but in several cases a woman has been listed as the head of the household. It was common at the time for married women to be referred to by their maiden names, and so married names have been included in the index where they can be discovered. In the cases of widows the deceased husband's name has also been included in the index. These men have been indicated with an *.

In all cases the original spelling from the document has been preserved as it is in many cases impossible to predict the way in which a family name may have been modernised over time. Where the name given on the document has been spelt several different ways (i.e. by the scribe, on the reverse by the council clerk, and in the signature on the document) the signature spelling has been used.

You can carry out a free text search of this index by simply entering your search name/term in to the 'find' box.
